

This diploma thesis deals with integration problems of foreigners' children into education system of the Czech republic. The thesis focuses on hangup of school fruitfulness these children depending on their social and cultural presumptions. Part of this thesis covers the pedagogic experiment, intended on findings presumption for receiving children into education system, edgewise both of foreigners' children and their families and parties which representative education system of the Czech republic.